FOREWORD

R. L. Polk & Co., Inc., herewith presents Volume XI of the Astoria City and Clatsop County Directory. The publishers have endeavored to produce a volume combining all that is vital in the civic, social and industrial life and activity of Astoria City and Clatsop County.

A careful enumeration of the citizens and the business interests, and a compilation of the results by trained employees assures as correct and reliable a work of this character as is possible to be produced. The publishers have an organization wholly devoted to the publication of Directories, and their methods and results are unrivaled. Their imprint on the hundreds of Directories published for cities throughout the country attests the quality and reliability of their product. A Directory is an essential and indispensable means of reference and an index to what is in a city. It portrays the community as it actually is, as an important function of the Directory is to set forth the characteristics and advantages of the city as a place of residence, as a business location, as an industrial site and an educational center. The Directory acts as a mirror, reflecting all that is noteworthy in the city and county in the above respects. It is a recognized standard work of reference, and becomes the most reliable history of the community and its citizens. As there is no other publication which gives the information contained in the Directory, there is probably no other publication in which all of the people are so vitally interested.

A complete index to contents will be found on page 6.

ASTORIA

“THE GATEWAY OF THE PACIFIC TO THE COLUMBIA EMPIRE”

Oldest American city on the Pacific coast, Astoria is in one sense the newest and most modern.

Founded in 1811, the business section of the city was entirely destroyed by a conflagration Dec. 8, 1922, and has since been wholly reconstructed according to the most modern practice in city planning and building.

Astoria was founded in 1811 by a trading party sent out by John Jacob Astor of New York, after whom the settlement was named. At that time there was no American settlement west of the Mississippi river.

The Columbia river, at the mouth of which the city stands, was discovered in 1792 by Captain Robert Gray of Boston, sailing the ship Columbia.

The site where the city was later established was visited in 1805 by the Lewis and Clark expedition. After the founding of the city by the Astor party it was seized by the British in the War of 1812 and renamed Fort George. Restored to the United States by the Treaty of Ghent, it has since remained an increasingly important center of American life on the Pacific coast.

HOME OF CHINOOK SALMON

Astoria is most widely known as the home of the Royal Chinook salmon. This salmon, which is without peer among the foodfish of the world, is caught only in the Columbia river and the industry connected with its catching and packing centers at Astoria. A score of salmon canneries and cold storage plants in and near the city produce a pack of salmon which averages about $8,000,000 in value. The industry employs thousands of men and women and is the third largest industry in the state of Oregon. Oregon's fisheries are concentrated at Astoria.

TIMBER

The city stands in the midst of one of the greatest timber belts in the entire world. Tributary to it is all of the timber along the Columbia river, as well as that along the coast for 100 miles south and 25 miles north of the Columbia river. Logging and lumbering have always been one of the essential industries of Astoria.

The value of the annual timber and lumber cut of Clatsop county of which Astoria is the county seat is conservatively estimated at $10,000,000.

SHIPPING A PRIMARY INDUSTRY

Shipping is one of the primary industries of the city, and is the newest in its development. While the city was founded as a seaport, its growth in maritime matters was hindered for nearly a century by the channel conditions at the mouth of the Columbia river.

The federal government has succeeded in eliminating this danger and today the Columbia river is characterized by war department engineers as having the safest entry of any bar harbor in the entire world.

The largest vessels plying the Pacific enter and leave the Columbia river with ease and without danger at any time and at any condition of tide and weather. At the mouth of the river there is a channel with a minimum depth of 45 feet of water over a width of 1,200 feet, with a minimum depth of 40 feet of water at mean low tide existing over an entrance channel 6,000 feet in width.

Following the elimination of the Columbia river bar as an obstacle to shipping came the development of the Port of Astoria and its great terminal system.

Astoria lies at the gateway to the second most productive river basin in America. Its position places it at the tidewater terminus of the only water level railroad route through the Cascade or Sierra Nevada mountains down to the Pacific ocean. It is served directly by two transcontinental railroads, the Great Northern and Northern Pacific, operating to the city over the Spokane, Portland and Seattle railway, which they own jointly.

PORT IS MODERN ONE

With this strategic position as a basis, and assured of the perpetuity of a more-than-adequate harbor, the people of Clatsop county constructed the Port of Astoria terminals, a system of three gigantic piers and auxiliaries, costing more than $4,000,000. This terminal system and the rate and facilities which it affords has served to attract a vast amount of commerce and its business has not only grown but has multiplied. Each year since the war, when the real commercial history of the Port of Astoria as a maritime factor began, has seen a substantial growth in all departments of the business of the Port of Astoria, this growth sometimes being several times that of the preceding year.

Astoria is not yet a great seaport, but the constant nature of its rise and the undoubted advantages of its geographical position entitle it to a place in the front rank of Pacific ports.

The Port of Astoria terminals are models of their kind for the entire United States. They were constructed along most modern lines and with the advantage of being planned with a great ideal in view.

Astoria has regular and rapid freight service with all parts of the world. It enjoys equality of railroad and ocean freight rates. It is nearer the orient than any other Pacific port.

Its port terminals have become an industrial center, the exceptional facilities of transportation, handling and storage which they offer serving to attract industrial concerns to cluster about the great transportation center.

Physically, the Port of Astoria has remarkable advantages.

Astoria has the largest fresh water harbor in the world. Floods and freshets do not effect it on account of the tidal action. Vessels are never subject to damage or delay on account of floating ice. The fog-bound hours are fewer than at any other Pacific coast seaport. The fresh water of the harbor kills marine growths and ships loading at Astoria leave with their bottoms cleaned of marine life.

IS A DAIRY PARADISE

The agricultural territory tributary to Astoria is of exceptional fertility and advantages. The so-called tidelands, bordering the Columbia river and its tributaries about the city, are deep alluvial deposits. They are diked after the fashion in Holland, but the tidal action drains them. There is no pumping and irrigation is needless.

The mild, equable climate keeps pastures green throughout the year. Snow rarely lies on the ground for a week during the entire year. The summers are not hot and the pastures never burn.

Forage and root crops grow with exceptional ease and productiveness.

These factors make of the Astoria district a dairy paradise and dairying is the primary agricultural activity. In Astoria the dairy products are manufactured, and they enjoy a wide reputation throughout the west.

Poultry raising is another important agricultural activity. The availability of cheap logged-off land, the mild climate, the abundance of green feed, and a certain and active market have reacted to the advancement of the poultry business during recent years until it is second in importance to agricultural Clatsop county.

Cranberries are grown in the region about Astoria and they form an important crop, competing on more than equal terms with the best berries produced in the east. Phenomenal yields are frequently secured, production of 500 bushels to the acre not being unusual. Despite the fact that the Columbia cranberry bogs supply only one-fifth of the Pacific coast demand, less than a quarter of the land available for this crop is in production.

The existence of fireweed, a peculiar nectar-bearing flower which thrives in the logged-off lands, has given to Clatsop county a thriving honey industry and one which is growing with great rapidity. The fire-weed honey is water-white, heavy, fragrant and so rich that it enjoys a national reputation.

Astoria has an annual rainfall of less than 60 inches, and the precipitation is so well distributed throughout the year that crops are greatly benefitted.

December 8, 1922, fire swept the heart of Astoria, leaving behind it a desert of ashes 40 acres in extent where the business district had been. The loss was in excess of $11,000,000. The peculiar nature of the city's construction before the fire left it in a pitiable condition afterward, with no streets penetrating the devastated district, where the ground level was nine feet below the streets.

The problems of reconstruction were tremendous.

Pass swiftly over those years of toilsome rebuilding. This booklet is not a record of past dramas, of deeds done. It is a record of the attainments of the present—and it attempts a glimpse into the future.

THE NEW ASTORIA

Today Astoria is the only city in America up to many times its size with a sub-surface wiring system throughout its business district.

In the reconstruction its streets were widened to care for the peculiar needs of the modern multiplying motor traffic. The streets are of heavy concrete construction, with tunnels beneath for the carrying of service pipes and wires.

More than $7,000,000 has been spent in this reconstruction. Nearly 100 new, modern, fireproof buildings have arisen since the fire. Their construction has been governed by a strict building code carrying the most modern requirements and provisions.

The pavement is of concrete seven inches in thickness throughout the entire business district.

The streets are brilliantly and beautifully lighted with an ornamental street illuminating system which lifts gleaming opalescent globes on the peaks of attractive pressed metal standards in ordered ranks along the thoroughfares. The lights are controlled by a master switch system, the illumination starting automatically as darkness makes the light needed.

No ugly wires and poles clutter the air above the streets and walks. No power lines carry danger through the atmosphere. All are conducted beneath the streets in tunnels.

The pavement carries no car tracks to catch wheels and slow up traffic. The City's traction needs are met by the operation of a modern motor bus system in which giant motor street cars carry the intra-city passengers more rapidly, more comfortably and more efficiently than did ever the street railway which they superseded.

The strict building code under which the new Astoria was built made the city's business section practically fireproof. There are no flimsy structures, no fire-traps, no ugly, antiquated buildings. Every business structure in downtown Astoria has been built since Jan. 1, 1923, and everyone is constructed as only a building can be built which embodies all of the latest ideas in the planning and construction of business edifice.

INSURANCE RATES ARE LOW

The result of this modern construction, coupled with the operation of the city's highly efficient fire department and the new fire alarm telegraph system, has been insurance rates which have practically reached the absolute zero. Where before the fire disaster, insurance rates in Astoria were extremely high, the lessons learned in the school of fire, employed in the planning and development of the new city, have brought insurance rates to a point than which there is no lower.

Astoria's water supply comes through a new 21-inch steel pipe line from the head waters of Bear creek, 12 miles east of the city. The supply is pure and adequate. No typhoid or other disease has ever been traced to the city's water supply.

The post-disaster Astoria is admirably supplied with modern hotel buildings. Where hotel accommodations were a problem before the Great Fire, the supplying of this need was one of the first considerations in the reconstruction of the city.

The primary element in Astoria's hotel system is, of course, the Hotel Astoria, an eight-story structure, building at a cost of $400,000, but public subscription, so that it is essentially a community enterprise.

In addition to this hostelry, which is without equal in the entire state of Oregon, excepting Portland, there are five other entirely new and modern hotels with still others in prospect. Astoria needs more hotels than the average city of its size because of the immense tourist trade which flows down the Columbia to Astoria in the summer season.

In the readjustment after the fire, the obsolescent street railway system was discarded in favor of modern motor bus service.

Astoria has embarked upon an extensive school construction program as a postscript to its rebuilding. It has greatly improved its water system. Its electric power supply has been more than doubled.

EVEN GOVERNMENT MODERN

Even the city's government is modern. Providentially, within three weeks from the time the city was destroyed by fire, a new charter became effective, putting the city manager form of government at the reins.

The results have been reflected in the astonishing recovery of the city from its ashes. Not only was the reconstruction complete within less than two years after the holocaust, but the city had actually attained a more sane and stable basis than before it was scourged with flame.

Despite the burdens of reconstruction, Astoria's public credit is far better than before the disaster, a consummation attributable directly to the operation of the city manager form of government and to the willingness of the reawakened citizenry to face facts and to meet them.

Seated upon one great peninsular ridge protruding into the Columbia estuary, Astoria queens it over the Gateway to the Columbia Empire. The Columbia river, seven miles wide, lies to the north. Young's river, a mile wide, is at the city's back. Westward is the sea—and eastward is all the wealth of the Columbia basin.

The climate of Astoria is beneficent. The annual rainfall averages about 60 inches. The lowest temperature shown by records running back over many years was eight degrees above zero. The hottest day on record saw the mercury at 90.5 degrees. Annual total snowfall averages three inches. The average mean temperature throughout the year is 50.43 degrees. The mean average for winter is 43.95 degrees; for spring, 52.80 degrees; for summer, 59.48 degrees; for fall, 45.5 degrees.

IS A TOURIST CENTER

Astoria stands at the junction of two of America's greatest highways, the Columbia River Highway which follows the great stream down from the heart of the continent to the sea at Astoria, and the Roosevelt Highway which parallels the Pacific coastline at the very edge of the breakers.

The first of these great roads is completed and is known throughout the world for its scenic wonders. The second is being finished rapidly and within a handful of years will rank with the greatest of tourist-calling roads.

Astoria is the center of a vacation wonderland. At its doors are the Oregon coast resorts, dominated by Seaside, the premier watering place of the Pacific Northwest. Ranking next to Seaside are Gearhart, Cannon Beach, Astor Beach and a long list of other famous resorts.

Astoria extends a welcome to the tourist, to the manufacturer, to the shipper, to the farmer, to the home-seeker and the home-builder. She extends not only a welcome, but an opportunity.

Old in years, Astoria is young in prospects.

SEASIDE

The city of Seaside (also called Clatsop Beach) has an ideal climate the year round, unexcelled boating and bathing facilities, splendid hunting and fishing (both fresh and salt water), that combine to make it one of the most popular summer and winter resorts on the Pacific Coast. Located on Clatsop Beach at the junction of the Necanicum and Wahanna rivers, 117 miles west of Portland, and is the terminus of the Spokane, Portland & Seattle Railway. Seaside has at present the brightest future of any city or resort on the Lower Columbia River. Seaside has a standing population of 3,000, with as high as 12,000 during the summer months. One of the finest municipal water plants is located at Seaside, the water of which flows from mountain springs at the head of the Lewis and Clark and Beerman rivers. Although small in population, Seaside presents a metropolitan air at all times and is bustling with business the year round. Several large concrete buildings have been erected the past year and plans are under way for the erection of more during the winter. Seaside has, aside from the above improvements, six miles of pavement, an electric light and power plant, gravity city water systems, best of schools and churches. The outlook for Seaside as a commercial center is promising, as at present there are large timber tracts being cruised for logging and three large logging crews are at work the year round in the vicinity. Seaside has a weekly newspaper, the Seaside Signal, saw, planing mill and box factory. There is room for several more, as the timber is inexhaustible. The scenery in and around Seaside is unsurpassed anywhere and the climate is mild in winter and cool in summer. Best of telephone and telegraph service, modern hotels at all points on the beach, fine auto livery accommodations and several passenger trains both ways to and from Portland makes Seaside the place to spend the summer months.
